Q4 2026 Business Report

DOC-FIN-004 • Version 1.0 • Owner: Finance • Last Updated: 2026-07-31

Executive Summary

NexaTech entered Q4 with continued growth in enterprise accounts and increased investment in the AI Assistant initiative. Project Alpha remains the primary strategic engineering program.

Revenue

Q4 recognized revenue is forecast at INR 21.2 million, compared with Q3 recognized revenue of INR 19.6 million. The forecast represents approximately 8.2 percent sequential growth.

Customers

Enterprise customers account for the majority of annual contract value. Expansion within existing accounts is expected to remain a major source of Q4 growth.

Engineering Investment

Planned Q4 engineering expenditure is INR 5.1 million. Project Alpha represents INR 2.5 million of approved project budget, while platform and infrastructure initiatives account for the remaining engineering investment.

Cloud Costs

Cloud infrastructure spending is forecast at INR 1.45 million for Q4. Cost optimization work is focused on database utilization, container efficiency, and model/tool usage.

Risks

Key business risks include slower enterprise expansion, cloud cost growth, reliability issues in customer-facing services, and delays in Project Alpha.

Outlook

Management expects moderate growth in Q4 and will prioritize enterprise retention, product reliability, and successful delivery of Project Alpha.
